

Prisoner Express
POETRY ANTHOLOGY
VOLUME 16
Summer 2016

Art by Len Whitman

Prison Life

Art work by Brandon Rushing

George Frison

God's Safe Deposit Box

I thank God for saving me
When I misbehaved terribly.
His punishment could've been worse
But Mercy & Salvation came first.

Many have it misconstrued.
What they call being arrested.
Is actually being Rescued,
Or call it being Sequestered.

The world's most precious gems
Are secured in safes and vaults.
Even God has such places,
To correct His children's faults.

Of times we can't focus or hear,
For all the bright city lights and noise
It is only in solitude
That we repent and regain our poise

We must see the Penitentiary
As a haven for saving
Not a satanic recruiting station
For criminalistic cravings.
In all things "appearing" negative,
There lies a positive lesson.

Open your Hearts & Minds,
Be grateful for all of God's blessings.

I thought I was hard as steel,
The craftiest fox on the block.
So I take it in stride, now that I reside,
In God's Safe Deposit Box.

Danny Ray Fammin

More Than A Number

I am someone special and yes I am
More than a number.
I am a father of three,
A soldier of seas,
A singer of love songs
And a cowboy of the land,
I am no number I am a man.

Yes, I know I have to stay in this prison
For a little while but let me tell you this,
There isn't a day I won't somehow shun a smile.
I keep my hope and my faith
I'll never show shame on my face.
I am someone special
And yes I am more than a number.
It's true to know me is to love me
And to love me is to know me.
I know the man.
I'm a little Redneck, a whole lot of country
I'm a dirt road devil and believe me,
I am the man that can get on any level.
I'm not a number, I am me, who am I?
I'm a child of God, I am somebody
I am special, I am strong
I am love, "I am me, myself and I"
A person.

Jacob "Crow" Perez

Multiple Melodies

The headlines screamed, "MURDERER"
Yet I receive letters addressed to "DEAR DADDY"
If life could be shortened to a soundtrack

What would be the theme Of Greatest Hits sung about me?
Would it consist of mournful arias
Sung by a kid
About the life that he never did live?
Maybe a heavy metal collage teeming with Screams of violence gaped by awkward silences
Country minstrels crooning about a love lost
Excessive booze drank, or flag and god?
Misunderstood rap lyrics Poetically detailing the journey
Of a man whose reach
Only grasped objects waved past?
I relate strongly
To classic and new rhythm and blues Tales infused with teeth rattling bass and pure soul
Could you select the disc
That perfectly sums up your entire existence?
It would be nowhere near close to simple
To relate the story
Of the multiple people that I've been They'd have to hire a DJ with a D.H.D to host a party and Create a mixtape
That captures the very essence of my being.
It'll take several disc
More than that lil guy's carter series
I'm The Game, I'm Drake, Lyfe Jennings and Jon B.
But to my beautiful little girl
I'm forever "DADDY"
They can attempt to box me in But always I'll be more than they've thought of,
Dreamed of, or seen.

Jessica Belue

"Hell Cell"

Brain piercing fluorescence Incarcerated icepick isolation Laughs at lacerations

Clawed vision, blinded
Soul-hiss
Rust nails ceaseless Slowly scrape chalkboard circuitry Inescapable chamber
Of voices Putrid cinderblock dungeon damp with desperation
Barb-wired human dysfunction dumpster
Life waste regret rat Fermentation of the forgotten
Discarded vertebrae void Conscience compost

Captive corrupt circus
Come one, come all Decomposition display case
Seething state slaves sing
Lost cause choir
On demand
For your viewing pleasure
Please do not top on the glass

Death flies swarm skulls Packed in like live sardines Bruising, battling relentless Thump swollen relentless
A frenzied furious flight
In and out Motionless mouths moan
Decay search
Like night moths hunting Moon glow, a flame,
The warmth of light
You are an exit

Thick black nostril stinging stench of desolation Dancing
Through every orifice
An imminent tornado of impending torment

Oppressive carnal crow
Perched at the base of your throat

A sternum of talons
Heavy heart anchor
Learned-helplessness hemorrhages
An unearthly weight
Too much to bear
A velvet doom laces curtain Clings tight
Like snug skin
Over bone
Dark death matter
Our starless smothering blanket Filling concrete caskets Stuffed to the brim
Inhaling exhaling Hopelessness
Like black ink agony Flooding a fishbowl
Splitting open the sides Seeping out, spilling over Pitch black pain
Suicidal solace swaddles us
Don't worry.
This all builds character
Born with a noose of permanence Pearls of peril
Waiting for a slip Asphyxiation atrophies every muscle Indigestible destiny
Oh, the density
It doesn't sit well

Eaten alive by envy Exhausted
The undead door
Revolving spitting in the Face
Of second chances
Stifled screams
Silence searing
Even our dreams
Desert us
But we wish not to remember
Minute by minute
Second by second

Tick tock
There's no clock
Mandatory misery music
Of each individual grain of sand Falling
In the hour glass Infinite
We slowly observe
Our time running out
Willing it to shatter
With every ounce of our being
We are not hell-fearing;
For we already inhabit it.

M. Kazi

Quietus

My celly died last night.
We'd spent the evening planning a political fight
But it wasn't till this morning that I sensed Something was not quite right
No. It wasn't till this morning that I realized something was wrong
It had been only a few hours
Not really very long
And it seemed rather curious when the guard unlocked our cage
That my celly didn't move. It was really quite strange.
But assuming he was sleeping I went out to eat
And when I returned with a slab of mystery meat I told him I'd brought something in case he wanted to eat
But since he didn't answer I decided to wait.
The morning dragged on and then it got late Afternoon approached and was fast on the wane.
Then evening arrived and with it the rain
So as I sat quietly in this dark and dank cell.
I began to notice an odor a faint but rank smell So then I got up and moved away from the source
Way across the room over near the door
And here I sit calmly...alone on the floor

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

Horace Thomas

Devil's Den

Once inside a state prison,
The time has come for a quick decision_

You can be yourself or you can be a fool.
You can educate yourself
By going to school_

Or you can walk the yard Playing tough, then bowing down when times are rough

You can change or be a punk, your man there with you in your bunk_

So much can happen
Within the Pen,
It's often known as the Devil's Den.

Alfred McGlory, Jr

Under Cover

When darkness falls, reality strikes
My dreams, they haunt me
In the middle of the night.

Day time is a blessing Night time is too.

When I'm under my cover
There's peace and a place of refuge.

Under my cover is where I hide
My pain and release my tears.

Cause when the sun arises

I have to be strong and Show no fear.

Shawn Blake

The Jungle

The prison jungle
Created by hairless apes
Our human folly.

James Edward Nichols, Jr

Concrete Paradise

Palm trees rise above
Concrete walls, prison- with a View of paradise

John C Elliott

Untitled

The top floor of the unit
Three cells from the end
A box I share with another grown man
I'm sure you already know
I have no friends
Just a blanket, a sheet, a towel and a pen.
There are only three showers
A week by then you will stink
Concrete, bunks made of steel Sounds of sharpening knives
So they can make you squeal
They throw you in a cage
To release your rage
They say you're no good
In the end they will see
That I have become some thing.

William Andrews

Preserved

Whoa! Hold on!
You've got it all wrong!
I'm the one who writes this song.

I maybe in white,
While the state pays the bills,
But it's my mind that only I'll fill.

Yes, you hold the Keys
And control the Lights,
Thinking you know,
What's Wrong and what's Right.

The little patches on your shirt,
The shine on your shoes
Doesn't give you the right
To give me the blues.

So hold what you got Before you say more Because only time
Can settle this score.

Your parole means little,
As far as I care,
My mind will be Free,
Be I here or there.

I've got books to still read
And paintings to be done
A plethora of learning
While hidden from the Sun.

I'm being Preserved
And sheltered from crime.
They say no wine
Should be served
Before its time!

So your job is quite safe,
There are others to stress.
Giving false hope,
while they're stuck in this mess

As for me I'll finish out this "ten"
Then head for Carolina,
Never to see you again!

Ross Hartwell

Rap sheet

Ought to be a crime
Missing first steps, first voice Telling momma "NO"
As if he had a choice

Ought to be a crime
When he's getting on a bus
Not holding his hand
As he puts up a fuss.

Ought to be a crime
Pacing a cell, hoping for a pardon Begging and pleading
While he begins kindergarten

Ought to be a crime
Not being a fixture
In the little boy's life Growing up in pictures.

Ought to be a crime
Absent for birthdays, prom, and graduation
Or when he leaves on a plane
To his first duty station.

Ought to be a crime
Missing the happiest days of his life
When the preacher pronounced
"You are now husband and wife."

Ought to be a crime
Not bidding farewell
To him stepping on a ship Sailing to Hell.

Ought to be a crime
Not being there to soften
The pain his wife felt Over the flag draped coffin.

Ought to be a crime

For freedoms gave away
We can wish all we want
He's not here today

Ought to be a crime
Spending life out of touch Since things that matter most Never seemed to matter much.

Ought to be a crime
Not being a son to a father
Or a father to a son
Was too much a bother.

Ought to be a crime
These crimes we've committed
'Cept the penitence we serve
Is much worse than prison.

Carl Branson

Desert Storm

Orange clad competitors curse the darkening sky
Its ominous rumbling likely foretells
An early return to stuffy hot cells

Joggers, bodybuilders and ball players alike listen
As the hot breath or summer howls from distant hills
Razor wire responding humbly in somber trills

At the base of the chain link fence
A captive sports page flaps rat-a-tat-tat It's rattle mocking the last crack of a baseball bat

The field's parched mouth sings praise
Dust rising like smoke from a burnt offering Multiplying many a prisoner's suffering

When at long last
The sky decides without favor or malice

To empty glistening pearls from its chalice

Dismay turns to joy
When each adult-boy plays in the mud
Slippery and slick during this sudden flood

James Olson

Heart Full Of Stains

There's misery inside of me...from the pain that is alive in me...is there resolution Or am I just too blind to see My mind is like a river flowing through
The banks of time
Unwilling to release my insecurities
Because there the only thing that's mine
I can't find a silver lining
I can't numb the hurt I feel
I can't find a happy ending
I don't believe that they are real
I feel lost without a purpose
As my days just fade away
I don't know why I deserve this But my heart is full of stains

Ziggy Sollenberger

Who Me?

I ask myself am I crazy, am I insane?
Could there possibly be Something wrong with my brain
Some days I feel happy,
Other days I'm so sad.
Is it really my fault little things make me mad.

I'm depressed but don't care, does that mean I'm strange?
So what? I laugh at myself,
I'm not really deranged
Yeah I might be different, but who really cares
I'm happy with myself so go ahead and stare.

We all have problems,
I choose to embrace mine.

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

I look at this world with an open mind
So I am who I am,
I don't care what you think.
I won't lose any sleep, no not even a wink.

Call me different and I'll smile and say,
Who me?
I love myself; I don't care what you see.
I won't live a lie, be something I'm not.
So be your self don't worry about others,
Let them talk.

Just smile and say who me?

Daniel Matthews

Where I Remain

Burn away summer's day today
Let's face it, this blue sky's grey fades away.
This ashy shade, oh how it burns this day
And burns this way for the world to see But not for me; I see no sun from inside this cage,
Am I inside of this place to stay?
My whole world shines and radiates fire.
Oh how beautiful unjustly fates conspire
This crimson sun, these rusty gates Live cinnamon, with a choking taste
Live magic summer is here again,
Pale and shadowed and graving thin, Fragmented light years for my sun; nurture me, my only kin
You are my only, when I'm within I find it hard, to refrain, my thoughts of hatred, rage and pain.
All these burnings here to stay, live lifeless shadows cast in this place Amber enters from phoenix wings; carry me through hell, but from this jail Running rampant in my dreams, inside this nightmare playing hide and seek And I know that this world has changed, because within
My world now the sun is not the same

With all of the wonders that summer brings I'll be cherishing,
Where I remain
Oh the torment that I inhale.

Larry "Anthony" Harris

I Never Gave Up

I was wrongfully convicted; to prison I was sent Armed guards on towers, surrounded by fence

All hell broke loose; some inmates came undone
But within this nightmare there's nowhere to run

Some Blood was shed; some of it was my own
I shouldn't even be here; I should be at home

This is not who I am or where I should be Satan's trying to take my life before I'm set free

So many days have passed; this still makes no sense
I'm still stuck in this prison and behind this fence

After so much waiting my appeal finally arrived And it's a "Not guilty" verdict. Thank God I survived!

A new start at life, a new path at my feet
Some nights I feel calm; some nights I can't sleep

People said not to worry, that I will be just fine
But they can't see my pain and they can't read my mind

A living hell is what I suffered; I wish this on no man

I know God's by my side; I will do the best that I can

In the morning awakening, early light in the skies

The memories of prison as tears fill my eyes

So I fall to my knees, and I thank God in prayer
He freed me from prison, and I no longer am there

So remember this, Satan, when you knock at my door

I am ten times smarter than I was before

For the sin that you fed me when I was at my worst You're no longer in the picture. It's Jesus Christ that comes first!

Artwork by West Reggie

Clarence Whitaker-Jones

Everything is locked up

Parents locked in room. Darkness, candles and jazz as the tune. I'm locked away in the sack trying to get free as one of a billion sperm cells locked away in the back trying to fight past my siblings but my mom already had eight children so I was the last of the pack released with parents' moans once they reached their climax.

Now I'm locked away in mom's womb a nine month county bid. Mom locked away from crack and snacks because she wanted a healthy kid so that's bad for her stomach. Drugs are locked away until I start giving her pain, biting the hand that fed me so I'm making her vomit.

Pop locked outside of the house working for pay, from his boss who holds his salary inside his bank. The bank locked up so nobody won't rob them again or that man will get locked up though he can't provide for his wife and his kids. My birthday I was told I was wrapped up, choked by the umbilical cord so that was a chain around my neck until the doc started cutting it off. I'm locked away from my conscience so mom got to take care of my needs. I'm locked in the hospital, no visitors, four brothers and three sisters all locked away in the D.H.S system, fifth brother got released from prison locked in party thinking now he has to change his life, exiting the back door a cop shot him, now his casket locked in the grave. Cop got off free while I'm locked on momma's milk, locked by her arms.

Was I locked down by a camera? Locked in dada's hands? That tape probably locked somewhere in the trashcan? Free from shyness, nurse taking me to the cradle, locked by screws in case I roam free and get loose that may end up a tragic like Mike Tyson's daughter Exodus. The doc unlocked the vaccines which were locked in a cabinet which was tested on the hamsters' that's caged prove to be safe.

Needles open my pores, drugs locked in my system so I get shots which is a criminal act metaphorically it's supposed to aid me when I grow up, to be mentally and physically sound but Kevin Trudeau would disagree with that now. That was locked in the box until mom went to Toys R Us before they locked it back down. My pop rode a bike, helmet locked on his head? Pop couldn't get a car so I wouldn't be locked to a car seat chair so I was locked in a stroller or the seat back of the rock locked to my head suspenders, locked to my waist buttons locking the left and right side of my shirt but my clothes were once from a sheep but it got killed so the fur became free. "That's harsh" is something a vegetarian would make known- that animal was locked on a farm free to not roam only released for some corn but soon got put into a headlock or shot with a gun, the bullets were once locked on high shelf locked away from the curious kid that may shoot someone else, those bullets cost little from whomever made it that lucrative, were bought for a dusted off contract.

Need protection in preschool, constabularies lock the gun in their holster? Getting ready to lock, load and shoot until it's over so if the bad guy comes they can lock the class doors and windows before he gets closer, hypothetically. Teacher gesturing to lock your mouth because if the intruder doesn't hear you, you can block him out. Days to come your school lunch is locked in a lunch box. You open it then lock the food down on your teeth and realize your teeth are a cage for your tongue and your lips are a cage for your teeth. You realize you release your poop, the toxins and poison in your system.

Remember your first girl didn't want hair in her face so the rubber band locked it away. She locked her secrets putting it in her diary. You tried to open it but she had the key to lock up the page. Teacher had the answer locked in a desk. You got suspended and were locked in your room. You do your time to get the playground and move you got a lock on the ball so you do your time to get to the playground and move. You got a lock on the ball so you can shoot it in the open back court. You release it in the air blocked by the wind that came out of nowhere your team loss. Your pride says "lock away all of the tears" they came down naturally free from pain especially from the beatings over the years come from the belt fascento your pop pants.

You are older and start smoking the weed locked in your locker which is in a Ziploc bag you cut school with your homies and got locked up fast. Phone locked with your password wish you listen to your mom to lock it in your head. High off free delta-9 t.h.c you got from your old head. You lock it in the patty wagon. Locked away from clear views so you can't see ahead as the silver bars are locked on the back of their chair. Cops lock their eyes on the road, friends gossip that you locked up, foster mom want to release you from the bad news but she locked out of her car, no crowbar lock to steering wheel so she is glad she put that child lock on. You in the district in handcuffs, locked on bench. You so high you go to sleep just to wake up to cop keys.

You are finally tired of being and seeing everything locked up so while you were dreaming, you dreamt you died in jail. Not understanding why you were locked out of heaven. Until you wake up realizing your time wasn't ready just yet to be locked up forever...

Social and Justice Issues

Artwork by Richard Gross

Jimmy Murdock

So I learned

I thought I knew wisdom
Because I knew nothing Until I met fate
Then I learned something

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

I thought I knew love
Because I knew fate
Until I met pain
Who taught me to hate

I thought I knew past Because I knew forgiveness
Until I saw a future
And learned how to live

Kadaron Sledge

When the Wounded Return

I left to fight for you, for patriotism, for freedom
Upon arrival, I just didn't want to die
I returned alive
Overjoyed only because my cup for joy has shrunk

There are no atheists in the trenches
But you don't understand my faith because No one has put a gun to your head

I was torn up, ripped apart, shattered Held together by my uniform;
we were soldiers:
Politics denied me that-Peeling my uniform like a scab

War is hell
But prettier than watching you waste the life
I almost died to give you

Give me liberty or give me death!
Is too much liberty death? Did I kill you?
By my wound, I ask you to live
Live! Because you're killing me

Nahbeel Richardson

Quilting Life

Black,
Is the color of thread,
I was given

To hold together, the silk
My fabric of choice, for my garment

One filled vividly Creatively
Flamboyantly
And Auspiciously, by my designer

Given my chance
I leave nothing, left to prove
As I watch you, with the backs of my eyes
As I, overcome

Suppressed
Due to the color of my skin
And not, conforming to my born gender Isolate me- from the mass
As I will not Let my free will to be rendered

This is not the end
As accomplishments are to be gained Whereas the fabric of my life's quilt
My dreams will be obtained.

Shaun Blake

A Walk

One day I decided to take a walk Down into the shadier side of town
So I could see how the other half live.

First it seemed the same as my side of town.
The people all looked like they enjoyed life,
I continued my way down the sidewalk.
Time passed and night crept on me almost alive.

This is when I saw a group up the walk.
They were young and acted like they owned the town.

I hesitated. Felt like walking another way

As I noticed that they all were carrying and I thought,
"Maybe they did own this part of town."

Odyssey Oronsaye

Budapest

Bodies washed ashore; troops cannot be found Blood on the sands, that's all they all want See the children pay the price with their dear lives

A man lost his wife, his three children died Running away from horror, now there's no tomorrow
His life died on arrival, memories are all he remembers
Take me back to Syria, my troubles seems to be better
Needed love from the world, but now my life is seized indeed
Wife and children deceased, consequences of a war on beliefs

Those who create the rain, residing in their comfortable shelter
From afar they smell the pain; the world is no more the same But who sensed this uprising? They stare at this all wisely

As peace is flying away with every passing day They say invade Iraq, oh wait! Osama is far away in the mist
In the mountains near Kabul we'll find him Obama's great announcement, the navy seals just killed him
Raise your hands if you saw this coming Like predictions of Christ and his second coming?

Evidence of global warming; like a thief the world it's taking Aftermath of human decision making Who said the center's holding? Its surroundings slowly cracking

Remember the rich man's wealth is nothing
If the poor is all that's around him He might seem far away, in this castle with beautiful fountains

Like a surge they come waging, repacautions all before him
So get ready with shields from afar, the fire, souls astonished Religion should be abolished? The true way to peace before me
But no! It can't be banished From the beginning of time, destruction of human minds
Now here we are next in line

How many more must die?
What if there is no train on the rails of Budapest?

Carl Branson

Lady Justice

Lady Justice, scales held high Standing guard at the courthouse door
Blind to innocents who die

Meth and coke are drugs to buy
Many kill to get some more
Lady Justice Scales held high

Knives, guns, cars and gangs to try Fit of rage, he kills that whore
Blind to innocents who die

Call the witness who will die
Anything evens the score
Lady Justice, scales held high

Honeymoon, his alibi Guilty now forever more
Blind to innocents who die

Victims all, by-and-by System corrupt at its core
Lady Justice, scales held high
Blind to innocents who die

Maurice Stokes

Revolutionize

I'm all for a revolution for the right cause But black America needs to wake up because this is bigger than a law Bigger than Trayvon Martin no disrespect to his life
But Zimmerman's incarceration wouldn't stop the deaths overnight Nor would it ease the pain or take away the tears
Of the 7000 black mothers that lose a child every year
To the senseless violence happening in the inner city streets Fighting amongst ourselves over the ground we put our feet
Our problem's deeper than racism in this day and time
As 91% of black murders are black on black crime
That's sixty three hundred seventy black lives Attributed every year to our self-inflicted genocide
Yes it was tragic and truly a shame
But how can we scream about it when we're doing the same?
Gunning down our own brothers over skittles and tea
It's impossible not to be angry because Trayvon could have been me
But what's the difference when we die from the bullet of each other

Does it make it not wrong because he's killed by a brother?
This is truly an issue I don't understand A death is still a death why does it matter whose hand pulled the trigger, to rob him of life Race shouldn't matter because a life is a life So if we going to start a revolution we need the right goal in sight
And start in our own communities teaching ourselves to value life...

Christopher E. De Rossitte

#24

I set against the stone, like Sisyphus,
And find to shoulder stone, the stone is me.
My torn feet grind the tearing sand-- hopeless
The weight does sometime seem; red-faced with stress

I strain; exertion, wrack upon ruin
Wrack upon ruin, drips; the stone is me.
My teeth grind as I grunt and throw again Shoulder raw against stone; eyes and scored skin

Want blood to weep, blood to water this field
Of death, this death of dreams: the stone is me Broke grind my bones; tears dried, blood shed, flesh peeled,

-I strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

I'll die against the stone; won't fail, won't flee, Enduring seasons' change. The stone is me.

-Cee Vagante

Patrick Hodge

Colors

Young, RED, braves play at kickball at the Catholic school,
Forbidden to speak their own tongue,
Sacred hair cut short,
Punished for praying to Grandfather Moon.
Taken far from home traditions, replaced by erudition
Written with YELLOW sticks. Grandmothers think of lost

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

Sacred time to speak the stories of Iktome and Prancing Fox
During the long cold sleep.
Many chiefs spoke to the WHITE Fathers, speaking of Vanishing bison herds, encroaching settlers on Sacred grounds;
And looting of graves.
The WHITE Fathers spoke of peace and
A cessation of war.
When leaving the talks, the chiefs were given a Give-away
Of heavy woolen blankets. What the chiefs didn't know
Is that the blankets were riddled with the BLACK pox.
When the WHITE Fathers spoke of the cessation of war,
He spoke of ceasing the people too.
MITAKUYE OYASIN----- A-HO!

Lucas W. Whaley

The Forging

We arrive as burning globules Napalm contained within Breathing heat and hunger
That awful courage
Born of abandonment
They quench us in gasoline
To slake the thirst for infamy
We emerge as blades
Every one
But none know which end
Is for holding Which for cutting
We smolder in sheaths
Brick, flint and steel Bidding conflagration
Tempered against one another
We exit as jagged edges
Drawn forward on shackles Holding forth bleeding hands

Jacob "Crow" Perez

Madness

Growing up alone, home was a strange place
Fate sprayed, trace amounts of common DNA
Please explain why I can't relate Straight faces lie all of the time Mine, used to look just like my father's Now I'm the father and my son can't be bothered,
All of life's truths got flipped Tricked, he resents the face in the mirror, because
All of the time wasted and spent Restless in a cold, yellow tinted prison cell Now he's confused, he doesn't know who he is

This carefully crafted papier-mâché globe
Is about to slip, split from its axis Exposing slick, premature black feathers
A defeated, innocent creature
Doomed to exist in an anonymous mist
Enlisted by the shadows to fight previous battles
The battles lost by his father before him
And his father before him.
When will this madness be extinguished?

Nahbeel Richardson

Today's America

Greatly, do I not appreciate
The slaying of my people
Out there, in the streets today

The land of the free
Home of the brave
Yet how is this true
When unarmed multitudes
Keep adding to the graves?

Pity, is not what's needed Never could you understand
The depth, of what it takes To be a black man

BLACK! LIVES! MATTER!

You certainly could not agree
Whose shoes would you rather fill Yours or one of these Trouble makers and delinquents?
Blemishes to society?
The backbone of America
Yet, you deprive me.

My God given rights
A human being
My forefathers' rights
A strong black man
Our founding fathers rights
At being equals
Treating us
As we're mere fecal
Even after all you put us through
We are not racist
It wouldn't be right
You see, our mothers taught us better than that We are just anti-white.

Artwork by Rauda, Anthony

Anthony Winn

A Weekend of Displacement

The lady walks across the room
With dignity boasting on her shoulders
Like a crown of locks Fashioned by the nurturing hands
Of a thousand mothers Ancestral roots of royal eloquence
That extend longer than immemorial skies.
She floats in-between prodigal sons Eclipsed from the urban wild

Growing, uprooted men
As maternal instincts gravitate
Her towards her own Son tries to sit motionless
But her emotions flame
Unfamiliar syllables in his body language.
Curiosity forms long creases
On his forehead that draw deeper Than someone's last breath spoken in a parable
Because nostalgia clouds his sight
Of a little boy of his likeness
Walking beside his mother
A reflection in the mirror to the past When life meant video games and sleepovers.
 Tight, he embraces his mother
Losing himself in an earthly warmth
A place where their souls had first met.
Tears, a therapeutic cleansing Loosens and undresses
The penal years of
An abnormal cost of living
 As the child stares with wistful eyes
And a closed mouth full of:
 Are you my dad...?
 When will I get tall...?
 Why can't you leave with us...?
Their eyes dance in a tongue too emotional for words.
So he hugs his son, his heir
Like a wedding band holds a promise:
Never to unlock his bond.
 Sitting at a table
That is small as their talk Short as their minutes allowed,
An officer makes it his duty
To undermine their visit
Like missing teeth ruin a smile.
 With a blank finish, sadness Renders his face
And displays a growing man
Who has misplaced his responsibility

Nahbeel Richardson

The Real World

Guilty is what they found me
Evidence of only words
The physical did not matter
Nor did it match
Corrupt is the system
Biased are its' people
How in America
Are all men created equal?

Taking people's lives Sending them away
The power of God
Does man attempt to obtain

Innocent until proven guilty Proof beyond a reasonable doubt Yet predetermined guilt Strips one's innocence.

Everyone makes mistakes
Yet, they, are all perfect Jobs are what they have But when will they be done?

Miles Washington

True Life

Brother and sisters, wake up and see,
All that platinum and ice is used to deceive.
Keep our people blind chasing material things When most don't even know what the word genocide means.
Neighborhood drug dealers are our son's role models
Because their fathers are gone or hitting them bottles.
So they turn to a stranger to guide them through life
But the blind can't lead the blind, so their guidance isn't right.
That's why so many youth feel lost and alone
Until their names get replaced with a number

A prison their home!
Some get no mail in jail and visits are dead They stress so bad they lose their hair from the head
So they return to the streets with a chip on their shoulder
Their mentality is the same,
The only thing different is they're older.
Little girls fifteen years old Know how to roll a blunt, talking about smoking dro,
Didn't receive enough love in her home, so she chose to roam
Trying to find it with a man that just wants to bone
Instead of going to school to earn an exceptional living
She depends on a man and accepts what she's given.
Mini skirt on her body thinking she's fly Sleeping around might catch AIDS and die.
You say she's a hoe that needs to get fucked
I say she's our future that needs to wake up!

Love

Art work by Norris Beebe

Barry Taylor

Getting Old

When the ravages of time hath
Of thy brow turnt to creases
Thine eyes mark't with crow's feet
And the sagging of the flesh never ceases
When thy breast hath fallen to thine knees
As the same with thy derriere

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

Thine eyes no longer see afar
And thy head beset with thinning hair,
Skin no longer soft, hanging loose
From thy bones which too are brittle
Your gut won't accept most foods anymore
As you betake of tea and toast, both very little When all that you have ever been, or desired to ever be
Hath taken wings, fear not my love, come, sit.
Grow old with me.

Leroy Sodorff

Thoughts From The Pen: Melody

When we first met
She had a band
Wrapped around the finger
Of her left hand

We played a two-part harmony
In concert on the down low,
But never made beautiful music
In my lofty studio.
We struck one accord
On every word we spoke Unlike her two-timing partner
Who always hit a sour note.

Though we both sang the blues
In perfect harmony
I had a band of my own
So a duet could never be.

Now here I sit at these bars Gulping down a stiff shot of Joe Having the time of my miserable life
While singing so low.

Robert Martin

Hard Memories

I am not sorry, but I apologize
Not for my actions but my lack of them
Not for the hearts I broke
But the ones I could not put back together

I'm not sorry for the frowns I've caused
But the smiles I did not produce Forgive me not for time apart
But time not spent on you
I beg of you not to forget the bad
So when you think of the good
You know the possibilities were endless
Know that in this life I carry a curse
And ruin all I touch,
So you will remember
How hard I fought for the memories we shared.

Luis Buchanan

Perdoneme

Madrecita quien me dio vida
De rodillas le suplico
Ya no llores Mama querida
Por un hijo ya perdido
Las lágrimas que derrama de su pecho Siempre serán mi dolor
Recompensa por mis hechos Dagas en mi corazon
Que se abre el terreno
Que la tierra me trage aqui Derechito al infierno
Por lo malo que le fui

Angelita quien me cuida
Le pido su perdon
Por cada lagrimita
Que por mi culpa lloro
No le fui buen hijo
Y me meresco lo peor
Pero le pido a Diosito
Que a Usted le de todo lo mejor Que la cargue en su ombro
Y le guarde un lugar
Para cuando caiga el fondo
En los Cielos tendra su hogar

Dedicado a mi AMA quien adoro con todo mi ser
Su hijo

David Brian Hayes

Lie To Me

We don't know each other, because we've only just met
But when the night is over, we'll have no regrets,
If you cuddle up and hold me, whisper in my ear,
Tell me all these little lies, you know I want to hear
I'll hold you close and love you,
Whisper lies in your ear too.
We'll ease each other's pain away
Cause tonight it's just me and you
And in the morning when I wake up,
If you're not here with me,
I'll know we were just two ships,
Passing on the sea.
But, if your soft warm body
Is still here, next to mine
We'll tell each other little lies,
Until the end of time
So, come on and Lie to me,
Lie to me,
Tell me that you'll stay,
Just don't ever tell me,
When you'll go away.

Will Van Sant

Beauty Unexpected

(Dedicated to the lucky ones who find a true and trusted friend behind bars)

A flower blooms in a junkyard Delicate-hued petals
Velvet to the touch Breathtaking
In their simple, perfect Beauty
Where it's least expected Rusted wrecks and Ruined relics

Stand silent sentinel all around
Like the dried bones
Of beasts long dead
Broken glass covers the ground Sharp, shattered, waiting to Cut
Cause pain
And still a flower blooms

The air is thick with The reek of piss
And shit
From faceless bums
And feral dogs
The sun is blocked
On all sides
By metal mountains and Trees of trash
The rainwater
Dirtied by debris Pools in Stagnant puddles
Incubating
Poisons, pests, toxins
And still a flower blooms

The earth itself
Barren, unnourished Weighted by Waste and Wearied by Want
Moaning in Anguish and hunger
And still
A flower blooms

Nathan Zimmerman

Untitled

More precious than diamonds
And finer than gold
It's rare and exciting
When all truth is told.

Sweeter than honey
And like a good wine
Yes, it only gets better
With the passage of time

Softer than satin
Yet stronger than steel
It banishes darkness
And brings sorrow to hell

Warmer than sunlight
Gentle as a breeze
It quiets the spirit
Placing all thoughts at ease

Can you tell what it is?
Have you figured it out?
What this wonderful thing is I've been talking about?

This perfect creation
Made right from the start
The most beautiful object
That's known as your heart.

From within it flows freely
That gift from above
The purest of all things
Is your perfect love.

Scott Pleasant

Forever and a Day

I was born from a glimmer of hope
And that's the story of my life
Just like a sailor and his boat
I find my way home each and every night.
Though I've been down and I've been out
I'm never lost without your love
From the smallest space inside my soul
To the faintest star way up above.

Stay- with- me
Even though you're not here with me

I know you will always love me
Stay- with- me
Through the darkness comes the light
Our courage will help us see the right
Forever and a day
It seems like forever and a day.
And now we're growing old There's not much left to see
But my love's just as strong as then It's safe deep down inside of me.

You said I was your rock
And you're mine just as well
These walls won't last forever Momma Protect me from this hell.

Raymond Haney Jr

"Ghosts"

I see you in my dreams at night
And find you in my thoughts by day.
Memories of moments past Wondering of possibilities to come Fantasies of times that never were Some stately, some scandalous
These visions fleetingly satisfy yet fail to last I lose myself in joy imagining being beside you.
But find myself in sadness when I return to lonely reality
Three words far heavier than "love"- They bend my shoulders beneath their weight
...
I miss you

George Frison

Man's Woman

Kinky, curly, straight,
Afro, pony or locks
Your hair is beautiful
No matter the style you rock.

Bulging, squinted, beady,
Brown, hazel, green.
Your eyes are sensual

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

Especially when you're mean.
Wide, pudgy, aquiline,
Hooked, curved or flat,
Your nose is unique
Worry not what others think.

Full, pouty, thin
Lipstick, lip-gloss, plain
Your lips are tantalizing
Your kisses...insane.

A, B, C, D

Any size suits me
Your breasts are succulent
May I partake of thee?

Virginal or mature,
Hairy, trimmed or waxed
Your mysterious tunnel of birth,
Is the softest place on Earth.
Fertile, plump, wide Hips protruding from the side
Your buttocks are alluring Sashay it with pride.

Long and lean, short and thick
Bare or clad in fishnet.
Your legs are soft and sexy
On that you can bet.

Pedicured, polished, natural,
Sandals, sneakers, stilettos,
Even toe rings if you got 'em
You're the bomb from top to bottom!

Carl Branson

First Love

It's been two score and more we've been apart
Now memories swarm like moths to a flame
Flitting and fluttering round 'bout my heart Separate lives spent with just me to blame Constant as the sun rising in the east
Reliable as phases of the moon
Images of you provide a mental feast

In dreams we're coupled again none too soon As your wind song scent tickles through my mind
Recalling the warmth of love's true embrace
My fingers in your chestnut locks entwined Whispered words heard only by fantasy's grace
In the netherworld of dreams I off'pine For your warmth and true love that once was mine

Lawson Strickland

For Emily

I tried to write you a poem but it ended up a song,
Tap-tapping a plastic pen (the one I chew on)
Against my desk's wooden corner, sitting alone.
You said I could not have you as you were Another Emily Dick, unreachable and remote,
High up in your dormered garnet, incising Long sheets of fine linen with the sharp stylus of your wit.

You would not be called down
I must come up.
(I heard you sigh, "If you must.")

So I tried to write you a poem, to construct a ladder,
Made a pentameter, I could climb foot by foot.
But at the top, my words propped
Against the wall of your indifference,
I found you gone. Run off to Marseilles
With those two jokes Rimbaud and Baudelaire, Barefoot and wearing (for them) the sundress I first saw you in,
When I fell in love.

Now I imagine you feeding the fisher-wharf cats tinned sardines, Wearing a beret and striped socks (yellow and green)
Tickle muse. Erato's coquette.

Distressed. Undone. I wrote you a song and Out of respect for your aesthetic (to which I've always aspired)
I did not send it to the radio but instead Hired a busker (you'll recall, Spanish gent, guitarra, Dressed like Depp's Cap'n Jak) to play the tune and sing While I hid in amongst the cobbled shadows
'cross
From where you sat. The open-air cafe *Chez
Les Mots*,
Beneath a striped (red and blue) Gitanes umbrella.

Ah! Dear Melpomene.
To see my love so.
Happy.
Tap-tapping her foot.
Thinking herself so far from home.

Lucas W. Whaley

Abyssal Acrobatics

In which future
Is there less fear:
The one of woven threads?
Or that fateless spin?
What life is more fulfilled?
A path blazed on your own?
Or a pairing meant to be?
Is there freedom in the netless tumble?
Or simply an endless fall?

Roberto M.Cruz

Together Forever

I told you. I couldn't live without you
I told you I would never let you leave me
I guess you weren't listening
You didn't wanna believe me
I didn't want it to come to this.
Now look, at what I've done!
I knew I should have listened to you
When you told me to get rid of that gun.
I fulfilled all your dreams

But that wasn't enough.
You never took me seriously
You called me on my bluffs.
I would have given you the stars and the moon
All you had to do was ask. And now just
To think, never again will I hear you laugh
That beautiful smile, I'll never see it again Neither will your mother, your father or any of your friends
Ten years of our lives will never be the same!
I always said you look gorgeous when you sleep.
Now even more so, lying in a bloody heap!
I'm sorry baby! I was just trying to stop you from leaving!
But the only way I knew how was to stop you from breathing!
The pastor said, "Till death do us part,"
But I know that's not true.
I think it will bring us closer.
Don't you?
Now what the hell did I do with that gun?
You ready baby?
Here I come!

Larry Robinson

Good. Bye

To this devotion. I say goodbye
Leaving emotions to wither and die
As my hidden love run so deep
And tears affirm eyes that weep
As darkness comprehend true light
To dove in spiritless flight
This reality so hard to face
To memories left in place Angels sung as a ride died
As we kissed and said goodbye.

Brandon Gene Rushing

By The Time

Oh no!
You gasp. As you carelessly brush me from the world. An accident, you claim. But you pushed me! And still I fell. And now in the motion filled void I plummet. The pale translucent reflection of my porcelain veneer blurs. I am compelled!

Some yellow ray of light illuminates the ivory skin of my too short existence. But what am I? It seems not to matter now, or least ways never did. In my own imagination though I am something spectacular! Something precious and simple in its creation. And you have thrown me into hazard! Now that yellow beam of light that was once perceived to be but a life giving ray of the sun dwindles. Its expedience mocks us two!
With its flashing death so too sums the culmination of this existence for me. It leaves me in stasis only a moment before in suspension eternally against the ebon backdrop of nowhere. This is my time. This one tragic instant that passes briskly from the lines of Fate's Weave. One last moment. One last memory in consciousness before I shatter. And even then I am sure that you will regret that one absentminded error. When in some fevered haste, some fire rush to conclude the business of living, you forgot about me. You will cry and wail your woe. Even as you search vainly for all the tiny pieces scattered upon the floor you will feel the sorrow of the loss. But you will see then that it is this gathering of stones and mementos that was done some time before. Long ago.
When your passion for the beat of your own heart drowned out mine. It was then. Not now!
You've just seen the shadow fall...Too late.

Scott Pleasant

I Surrender

About a 1/2 a day's drive just south of Dallas
There's a new sunset that's waiting for us.
It might've taken us forever just to get here
But darlin', it was well worth the fuss.

It's so peaceful that the Milky Way is humming
Or maybe that's just you while you smile.
Either way, I'll take this over Heaven

Just promise me that we'll be here a while.

This must be a dream,
Because here we are together.
I almost can't breathe.
It's so wonderful in this life.
Darlin', I surrender.

Now there's a thousand stop signs left behind us
And we're still just trucking' along.
We could've slowed down just outside of Austin
But Luckenbach never did Love that wrong.

So the Hill Country can roll on forever
But it's with you where I wanna stay.
Like the hummingbird that searches for the one and only flower
I can't wait to wake with you another day.
I surrender

Sarah Julie Spencer

For My Special Someone

For the someone
I never found in life
I hereby wish you well
Whatever you may be doing now
I hope you're not in hell.

For the times we missed together
Forever we will mourn
We will grieve the loss of moments
Emotions tossed and torn.

For my special someone
I know just how you feel
You dreamed of much more love
But our love was not quite real.

Here & there, a random glimpse,
Of a love you hoped could be
Over the years, through doubts & fears.

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

You hoped for a life made of you & me.

Though it's what we've both been missing.

It's almost too much to bear.

Knowing I went through life alone

Without your warmth & cheer.

For my special someone,

All my love I send.

If you can read or hear this,

I wonder where you've been.

Eric Whisnant

Detox From You

Late one night while trying to sleep, my body threw a fit

I tossed, turned and broke a sweat, as cold as ICE could get

A hint of your perfume, suddenly draped around my nose

My eyes tightly shut, suddenly were all but closed

I heard a noise, I thought was your voice, I set up fast as Hell

From top to bottom, front to back I immediately searched my cell.

Under the bed, to the door and back, not a soul around

I would bet my life, I smelled my wife, I know I heard her sound

With one more search around, it's clear that I'm alone

Her presence I thought was with me, was now suddenly gone!

Timothy Alunkled

My Life

My life is passing

One day I will go

Today is worth living

Tomorrow who knows.

My life has a past

Locked away in a box

Unable to be opened

The key I have lost

My future I know

I can not predict

Like a candle I'll burn

Till I run out of wick

For now I shall live

One day at a time

I'm never alone

With you on my mind.

Raymond Swanson

Our Home

Our home is a small town
Where dishonor does not live.

Our home is a front porch
With music on Friday night.

The sounds they echo in the hills.

Our home is a heartbeat
One for He and one for me.

Our home is gen-u-ine
Like rain on the roof, apple pie.

Our home is strong enough
That love will get us by.

The midnight moon glimmers through the trees.

Our home is hard work
Days in the dusty fields.
Our home is a small town
Where love always persist.

Brian Meegan

Killing The Past

I want to walk into the water

Swim in the sea we once played in

Explore the deeper reaches

Now that you are not here to distract me

Letting the blue of the water

The white ripples engulf me

As I dive beneath their waves

And the commotion they cause

I swim far then and deeper

Until all familiar to me disappears

The expanse we used to play in

Is becoming a cloudy remembrance

The water embraces me as you never did

Filling my mind, holding back no secrets

I escape my own thoughts fully now

Letting the cool calm of the deep penetrate me

I have made the ocean mine again

Returning myself fully

Let the current wash away my sorrow

Free me and make it all a distant memory

Cesar Martinez Hernandez

Definition of a card to my children

Here is a double sided rose

For love has no end

It's wrapped with a banner

Coz much like a family

With life's twists and turns

We still have each other

It says missing you

Coz I really do

It also says

I love only you

Coz let's face it girls

We're stuck with each other

Like a bunion of glitter

Mixed in with glue

I guess what I'm trying to say

Is simply I love and miss

All of you.

Frank Sweet

Before it is too late

If you have a tender message,

Or a loving word to say
Do not wait till you forget it
But whisper it today;
The tender word unspoken
The long forgotten messages
The places you never went For these some hearts are breaking
For these some children wait;
So show them that you care for them
Before it grows too late.

Nature

Art work by Braxton Bowers

Burl N. Corbett

Choka For A Daughter

As we sat in the tree's cool shade, my young daughter asked its name, eager To identify the things sharing her world.
"It's a red oak," I replied,
And she smiled--
Another stranger was now her friend.
That was long ago.
Today I put its last chunk
In my stove.
The smoke will write
Its own epitaph,
Published in the wind.

Lucas W. Whaley

Failing Stars

I satellite boring in Alone in the dark, gravity sore
A guide in your skies
Guarding your core
You turn away
And lead me along

Crack and crumbles, this crust of me frays
This break-up pulls closer
This orbit decays
Plummet and fall sere away fear
As pieces of me
Ignite your atmosphere
Falling stars

A quake and a fission,
A fractious decision,
A million new lights
A million collisions
Hammering heads
Precede holocaust tails
Your vacuous heart
Tipped delicate scales

Crack and crumble, this crust of me of frays
This break-up pulls closer
This orbit decays
Plummet and fall sere away fear
As pieces of me
Ignite your atmosphere
Falling stars

Murders committed with every embrace Descending bombardment
Are in apocalypse grace
Once your reflections of beauty and light
Now a blank sky
A burned away night
Crack and crumble, this crust of me frays
This break-up pulls closer
This orbit decays

Plummet and fall sere away fear
As pieces of me
Ignite your atmosphere
Failing stars.

Chris Charney

Untitled

Oh beautiful beautiful water weeping away from the sky
Seen through my coin slot window, very few drops meet my eye
Oh were that I weren't in prison
I'd jump in your puddles and sing
I'd try not to run or take shelter
Let my fresh shaved head feel your sting.

Shawn Blake

Starry Sky

My starry sky can
Not be seen by looking upward
But inward my soul.

Armando Lopez

A Swaying Leaf

Once, I felt something spark
As the universe showed me love.

As I slowly watched a leaf tenderly dropping From a swaying tree, into a journey upon itself.

It swayed this way and that Silently tumbling down to the leafy ground
How beautifully it descends
As the wind gently swayed it so

And in this gently swaying leaf
A spark anew inflamed my heart
To a remembered love
Lost amidst a windy tempest

Where time nor space succeeding
In diminishing it's comforting embrace

And as the falling leaf
Came to rest upon the ground
I gently picked it up
And seen within its veins--
The journey of an everlasting love
That you and I have always shared.

Raymond Swanson

Untitled

The current could carry you away,
It's been here since the beginning.
Log rafts and destructive floods,
Not to underestimate in the spring.
Through big cities and little towns,
Its winds, its way hardly slowing down
Cast a line or float on a tube, Some days there's nothing I'd rather do.
Tuesday morn or Sunday Afternoon,
I sure do hope you'll make it someday soon.

For you'll be gone before she stops,
So hurry up and make the walk
Wade right in or row across,
Just enjoy the day 'fore it's lost.

Joseph Hudgins

Paradise Lost

I am compelled to explain how I feel when I watch the flight of birds
You might expect to search my mind within this shaken
Cocktail of words
Never stirred.
Far beyond the misconception of love, hate and all things Considered, I am.
The twice forgotten bird of paradise, plucked clean and Whittled down beyond broken.
Only a man.

Haunting the sacred edges of sanity begging at the temple's Golden Gate.
I have no love affair with this gravity nor shall I embrace
This twisted fate.
Applause from beyond the clouds, the beautiful beating of wings I embrace Countless wild flowers mock in a plethora of color
And textures blossoming before my down casted face Identity unknown within an ill-fitting human suit
Of flesh and jointed bones.
Against an azure backdrop birds rest upon a wire
Preening and I drop a tear and dream of home.

Robert Andrew Barlett. Sr

Recognition

Out beyond the drifted snow
Bib reflecting wintry glare
Shaded from the darkened sun
Once I saw a shadow there.
Far from wood or garden shade.
Where the windswept grass broke through Without warning he appeared
As a friend I'd thought I knew
With a shout I threw a ball Begging, pleading, "kisby, here!"
Ears erect but lowered tail Signaled some unspoken fear Should I come or should I go?
Do you ever know or care?
Kneeling down, I call your name;
Silently you stand and stare.

Artwork by Chaffin, Jamie

Brandon Rushing

Captain's Lady

Weep,
Weep yourselves to 'morrow's shore!
Tallow candles, wax and swain.
Bent backs broken every one
From thy pull lanyards, yards and sails Knotted ropes of every size.
Aye, aye, for me it 'tis the helm.
And to the deeps with Gale I ride!
And to the deeps upon the tide.

J.D Frandsen

Zona

Stretch your eyes out and up towards the prehistoric banks. Cool water once covered all that we hate here today Joe. It was a long time ago when the winds began to carve the Indian nosed monuments high above this dry lakebed.
As the years passed and their faces were smoothed and defined, they watched the liquid ghost away and the sage brush crawl to carpet the hollow flat.
When our prison was built the carved giants began to frown, and the phantom trout that slid between the chaparral had less play; so the winds mighty and wise lay siege to this cancerous
Construction and the howling drives us mad as the invisible panics to free us. She is strong and she pities us. She will clean this awful mess.
She will push this beast to Nebraska.
Now the dark thunderheads gather from the west to help her, and the waters swell the rich crimson clay, cracking the cellblock foundation; and the sands understand they must shift to bury the buildings.

When the cold has her turn she brittles the beams and pesters the vanquishers sitting pompous. She blocks off the roads- thwarting their trespass- icing the glass in revenge.
Springs thaw spills new water on her task, rutting scars into the square asphalt burdens.
Seeping through, and rotting the roofs that were set to cap our screams. Load Bering walls recede from the halls, folding the rebar in tangles. I've prayed for this homunculus of concrete and steel to split and sink like a ship wreck, down, down...deep into the molten core.
One-day Joe all of this will be no more, and the stone elders above will smile. The prairies in unique patted shapes of sponged canvas will have crept and strangled the pock-marked remnants of human nuisance. Her critters and raptors will dance for the watchers; and the old Jurassic walleye spirits and self-noosed convicts in mourning will wander and wane encircling each other in the great decaying bowl of time.

Shawn Blake

Spring

Melting snow soaking the ground
Heavy rains soaking everything else
Both bring spring flowers.

Jeffrey Burt

Safe?

The darkness wins again today.
Will tomorrow show it's light?
Does the wise owl ponder
Why it stalks the field mouse?
I think not.
Do I wonder why I bleed in this darkness?
I wish not.
Can a soul be saved?
I fear not.

My head and heart clamor with a pain they cannot bear.
A pain I slice from the flesh.
Will the next slice be the last?
Do I hope not?

Scott Ball

Untitled

I hear birds outside bragging bout
The freedom's they've got

But their nests are built on limbs
In trees weakened with rot

The most precious gems, have fallen from
The jeweled string.
No one in our city seemed to notice a thing

Beneath a molten sky in our world of lies,
Have you seen the sadness in your mother's eyes?

Do you want to see, the end of suffering and pain?

I just want to see humanity unchained.

James David Proctor, Sr

Winter's Edge

Upon the precipice, perilous I stand,
Spying a deadly, glorious land.

Trees, as death's cold fingers do appear,
Not a sound...nor whisper do we hear.

Skies flush with elaborate, ardent colors, from the god's own breast, Symbolic, of the inevitability of man's eternal rest.

Do we, deny the winter in us all?
Should we, forget man's fateful fall?
Ignorance at its best, can indeed be bliss,

But it comes, at a terrible risk.
For history, which too often repeats,
May yet yield a day when man can't exist.

Life, Time, Death,

Art Work by Angel Juarez

Lucio Shadow Urenda

Sparks of Life

Old and cold He walks alone
Staring at the moon
His bones with hurt trying to keep warm
He takes another sip from the boom
He huddles up to his favorite corner
To feel the heat rise from the drains Hoping, praying to make his bones warmer
He sits and makes his last request
As he closes his eyes and breathes his last breath
Another spark of life is burned out.

Out on the distance a cry is heard
A woman's pain, another spark of life
Her baby's cry is full of life
Another spark is born
This life's continued cycle
For sparks burned out
A many they do
At day and night on New Year's too

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

But just like all the ones that go out
One sparks up to take its place
For God never leaves an empty space.

Jeremy Dunlop

The Dinosaur

As a child I was a Dinosaur,
A large carnivore of course,
Roaming the ancient world,
Of my backyard in search of food,
Roaring my challenge at my competition,
A pair of disinterested calico raptors
Who would either calmly saunter off,
Or twine around my ankles and purr
Which is odd behavior for velociraptors,
But since I was a Dinosaur King
I suppose it was okay.
I roared and ruled until sunset,
When mighty mother beast,
Called me back inside,
Where I prayed on spaghetti and meatballs.

James Edward Nichols, Jr

What Time Hath Wrought

As the eyes grow dim, and the body weakens and withers with age,
So, too, my soul in like manner doth bow down upon itself.
As the hopelessness grows with the weight of the burdens loaded upon my soul I seek to find a semblance of peace to ease the burden which time hath wrought upon me;
To find peace and joy, once again- if ever it were to be found within.

Edward Homer

BURIED TREASURE

Try to visualize a color that's never been seen Think hard. Can you see it?
That color best depicts my state of mind,
Pacing between this cradle and coffin called life.
Like snails navigating through salty roads,

Dissolving as we grow more certain about uncertainty.

Irony is my spiritual guide
And she guided me to a fork in the road,
Then left me for dead
But Death didn't want any sloppy seconds.
Road kill reincarnated into second chances.
I paid my fair share of humble taxes, Keeping my head down blending in with the majority
A blue lobster thrown back in the ocean.

Get me back to my apex if there ever was one.
To hell with all these scales and equilibriums Cliché struggles of the misguided souls if you will.
Human stories told to ghosts that scare them to life.
Let the lightning strike you twice.

Cesar Hernandez

Around The Corner I Have A Friend

Around the corner I have a friend,
In this great city that has no end,
"Tomorrow," I say, "I will call on Jim Just to show that I'm thinking of him."

But tomorrow comes- and tomorrow goes,
Around the corner,- yet miles away,
"Here's a telegram sir, Jim died today."
Around the corner, a vanished friend.

Matthew Smith

Life's Journey

I stumble and stagger down life's bitter road;
Burdened and weary from my heavy load.
Clouds of dust mark my path;
I taste the fury of the "Grapes of Wrath."
Desolate and bitter I carry on,
Striving and struggling for whatever lies beyond.
From sunrise to sunset I trod my path alone,
Aimlessly searching for a place to call home.

Sweat streaks down my face soaking my neck, Fatigue overwhelms me and I am short of breath.

Exhausted I stagger; walking on dead feet,
Plodding slowly to whatever in life I shall meet.
No longer able to walk I sit and rest,
Patiently waiting to be taken by death.
Once in its embrace bliss I shall find;
As the wearies of life are erased from my mind.

Matthew Smith

Blood

Blood spurts from my wrist and splatters the walls;
Dripping and running, I watch my blood fall.
I lay consumed by agony as my life source drains,
From the shredded and mutilated remains of my veins.
The steady drip of my blood as it falls to the floor,
Takes me closer and closer to the threshold of death's door.
The more blood that falls the more my soul fades,
Burying me deeper in the depths of my grave.
The pain that consumes me is slowly replaced with bliss,
As I gradually slide deeper into the abyss.

Jack E. Dyson

Despair

Despair,
Is my best friend
This loneliness we share,
Her shoulder she lends,
She takes my hand,
And together we rummage Through this wasteland
Nothing but rubbish
If only I could discover
One nice thing
I could leave my lover

And take back my ring
But all for naught
So we're destined to be Mistress despair has got Every last bit of me

Anthony Billings

Insatiable

Give me just one and I will want two
If you gave me a couple then I would want a few
If I had a bunch I would only want more Yet if I had it all I would only be bored.

Barry L. Taylor

"Brother" Death

Time- do not bring me back from my old age
For I have earned my end to life's long song
And having reached that final yellowed page
Do not say I must have got it wrong.
I wish not to continue with this joke
We call life- surely someone else can take My place, while I step out to take a smoke Never to return- for joy, no more this heartache.
For fickle hand and shifting sands
Take more from me, come every new day,
Till I can no longer recognize he who stands In the mirror- I've gone so cold, so small, so grey.
Yet were I to compose for me some curious wasting legacy
I would then gladly follow you to your home across death's sea.

David Gingrich

Another Year

A mist of fog engulfs the air,
And the water stands calm and still.
A flock of birds take to the sky
To the sound of a whirlpool.

The roaring noise of cars go by;
Buildings in the background stand tall.
I can see some animal tracks

On the ground where the snow did fall.

The wind is light yet briskly blows,
The trees are swaying back and forth.
The atmosphere is full of geese
That have migrated to the North.

Spring is slowly taking its place;
Warm weather bringing up the rear.
In passing time flowers will grow
And chirping crickets you will hear.

And just as the seasons take place,
And the rebirth of life's spawn,
I know my freedom is closer
Because another year is gone.

Miscellaneous

Art by Christy Latham

Janice Funk

Mathematics

I once understood the formulas,
The mathematics of timing
The algorithms of risk
The calculus of forgiveness
Now I'm not so sure.

In my youth I questioned
The square root of sacrifice
The bleeding radical abundance
Nailed to the tree of algebraic

Marvels. Now I wonder if I can Spare some change.
Then we relied on the multiplier
A token of kindness seven times the Reciprocal of grief circulating like A lucky coin, the currency of children
Now my pockets are empty

If I open a book from my youth
And discover a page of arithmetic Homework, would I recognize the numbers--
The confidence of the sevens
The passion of the nines, of primes of eleven?

Now and then I seek proof in the missing Pieces of equations, something less Than the sum of all its broken parts Across the gap of time, spectrum of Differentials, this rage of all things Being equal, I find myself on one side and you on the other.

Sarah Luedecke

Destinies

The destinies of crimson
I know are filled
By such brokenness
From crimson hearts
And things left Without speaking
Should complacency
Snuff out the spear
In my side
And blind me to The pain that thrives
Sweetest kisses
Filled with crimson metal
But unknown effects
Left behind on its absence
Insanity manifests quickly Insecurity screaming
Inside my head
They take the form

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

Of silence
The kind that screams much too loud
Is this the monster
My own monster fears
Or the torture
That gives birth
To agony inside
The rush of blows
That are not physical Are quicker than any Deadened eyes
Could know
Because without this
I became tempted
To give into the Vast permanence
Of crimson destinies
Would it hurt
To know I'm gone
To better understand
The pain you've caused Am I a fool
For giving into it Without reserve
Or not better thinking
Of you before hand
True nature
Are we not alike
In every aspect
You and I
Both once hated
Things withheld
From us
To have no thoughts
Of such a need
For these things
And now it's all
I crave and need
To the point past
Obliteration of all
My being
I contemplate too many Undisclosed variables

Ones that make me
Wish I was asleep
Wrapped in crimson sheets
Do you want me to long
For such crimson destinies
Does it hurt to be away
Because I know for me
I cannot Begin to comprehend
I try to hold onto the edge of this Blackened mountain
Covered in ice
But my finger tips
Are numb and
My resolve is breaking!
The only thing
I think of is
The hope preventing Such permanence
Of thoughts I cannot hide
Do you see the pain
Or truth
That lines my words
Can you understand
My name now
When once upon a time
I fell like the angels
I don't mind falling
Because you are the cause
But I don't want to Be here in the city
Of the lost
I dwell in small place Where only you are
To keep at bay
Such crimson destinies
Is fear.

Robert Deninno

Gratitude

Sometimes all we have To look forward to is how
The bar's been set so low

Expectations as well anyhow
The day seems to bleed
From one into the other
They blur from one to the next Swear from one to another
But prisoner Express allows me
To shelter this monotony
And allows me to be
The person who I might to be

Shannon Guess Richardson

This Pain

This pain is so deep,
It has completely consumed my heart
There's no-one to talk to
And where would I even start

I've cried for so long
Have had many a sleepless night
My life is so dark and lonely
Without a hope in sight

People all around me,
They tell me to stay strong
But how do I keep doing that When I've been doing it for so long?

This pain is breath-taking,
Completely consuming.
How do I go on?
Is my life even worth resuming?

I prayed to God to please just end my life
This pain is way too deep
It cuts way worse than a knife
Why can't He understand
This pain I feel inside?
I can no longer cover it up
This pain I can no longer hide Fine, God, you win!
You refuse to let me die
But I need for you to help me
I need you to hear my cries

My heart is completely broken,
Shattered in little pieces
I need the kind of peace
That they say never ceases

But how do I even get there,
From such a dark and lonely place?
How do I get there from where I am
To the peace that is supposed to come with God's grace?

Writing

Artwork by Reed, Christopher

Jerry Jackson

The Penman

To the Penman ink is as prized as a soldier's ammunition at war
And letters more important than a soldier's rifle by far Understanding this, who will grant the penman's wish
To let such things lie as such things fall
To let such things be as though they were In wonderment the penman writes and writes.
Using letters and ink to express his life.
When thoughts of creativeness creep up from within
The penman calls upon his trusted friend
When duty calls and night befalls upon empty halls

The penman is there. The penman is aware.
Therefore he writes and writes expressing his
life
But strange things happen time and time again.
To the penman's amazement and that of his friend
No matter how much the penman writes and writes
Strange things happen night after night
At the strike of twelve and midnight's delight
All the penman's letters take flight. Take flight.
Leaving the penman's pages blank and unobscured
Through vision blurred and speech slurred
The penman awakes to last night's missing
words
As a polar bear's wish for fur
The penman's wish is that things be as though they were So he writes and writes. Never writing the same thing twice
He writes and writes until the diminishment of light
Then on the eve of the new moon
Asleep was the penman in his room.
But before father time could sing his song called midnight's delight
The penman stirred awake before the clock could strike
With eyes wide it was clear for all to see.
All the letters on the penman's pages were preparing to leave Brushing off dust, packing bags and rolling sleeves
Caught in the act as the clock struck twelve The penman couldn't believe his eyes even though they seen it themselves
All his precious work and talents
Hanging on the thread of a seconds balance Astonished in a stupor he began to speak,
"Oh cherished letters for you I fight
Never has a thought evaded me for you I write

But oh letters let things be as though they were."
A recurrent of the night before.
All the letters aligned and headed for the door
With silence of heart and a conscience core Suddenly the letters stopped and began rearranging themselves
Shuffling and baffling as Santa's elves Spelling out.
Honorable penman.
Your love for literature has brought us thus far But through pages and centuries we live in fervor
We have been cursed not to live forever
Unless the ink you use is your own warm blood
And the tablet is your heart. If this you truly love.
Without hesitation the penman replied
"This is my one and only true love
To write and write on heaven's clouds above
If the spilling of my own blood is what I have to do
Then that will be done to drive the love for my craft is true"
Standing upright and removing the knife from its sheath
The penman reversed its angle and thrust it upward into his abdomen
Into the perfect spot for immediate death
As the penman's warm blood spread over page after page
All the words and letters previously written reappeared
And before the penman entered his final sleep
His eyes once more fell upon letters rearranging themselves
Slowly reading as he lost consciousness
"Honorable penman
With your blood still warm spreading over page
after page
You have released the caged and decreased the rage.
Now the ties to an eternal curse will finally sever.

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

And we can now live forever.
So all things shall lie where such things fall Rest in peace honorable penman.”

Lawson Strickland

When Bars As These Won't Read

When bars as these won't read, a villanelle
Cold fashioned to restrain, what never frees,
Then what their meter measure must rebel.

The thing within the heart of every cell
That beats the poem racking for release,
When bars as these won't read, a villanelle.

Devised, such silent strophes never tell What truths they hide, that languish in-between,
And what such meter measures must rebel:

From metal scansions poor contrived to quell
By rigid time what death alone does cease,
When bars as these won't read, a villanelle.

What lacks all prosody, despite how well
One reasons rhyme, it offers scant relief.
And what it falsely meters will rebel:

For stanzas writ in steel only compel
What's trapped within to reject what they teach;
For what their meter measures must rebel,
When bars as these won't read, a villanelle.

Mark Miller

Something Written Something Read

Loneliness is setting in. My pen dances
Across the page in lyrical and rhythmic effect.
A rhapsody.
Later on the story goes, something written Something read of the letter you never wrote to me

I'm stuck inside this prison with feeling of remorse, sad and woeful

The concrete so cold without knowing you, without you knowing me.

I'm lost. Forgotten within the pages of the letter
You never wrote to me.

One paragraph. Just a line or two, would it be too much to ask?
For even a postcard with love?
You go on living in silence as if I don't exist.

I stay here bitter and unkind how sweet,
because
I'm waiting for the letter you never wrote to me

Hello, how are you? Do you need anything?
Would seem nice. Something written something read

Like this poem to you.
Hey there, "Robert Frost". Today I know why
"There is no tears in the writer, no tears in the reader."

"No surprises for the writer, no surprises for the reader

I breathe, I turn the page it's the same ol' phrase
Something written something read of the letter you never wrote to me.

Why?

Yours Sincerely,
Patiently Waiting

Anthony Montecino

Untitled

I write to quell the rage
I am feeling the effects of this cage!
Insanity is not far behind
He is catching up and he wants my mind!
Loss of memory is a sure sign,
Is it your apathy towards me that causes you not to see
Or are you just blind!
How is it that I am supposed to be reformed?

When daily torture is the norm!
I struggle and strive with all of my might I speak out because what they are doing just isn't right
I remain in the darkness I have never seen the light
I'm tired I'm weary I'm ready to give up the fight
There can be no point
When the oppression is nowhere in sight!
DON'T-GIVE-UP

Santiago Duncan

Unbroken

It's been a while since I put this pen and paper together
I've been marching through landmines hoping to weather
The storms that hail winds and heavy rain drops That weigh down on my shoulders hoping that the strain drops
A soldier treading footsteps on a trail that's been barren
And bearing the burden of another soul trying to hold the bear in Deep in the depths of the lake of a thousand sorrows
Hoping to make it, hoping to see tomorrow My will is unbreakable, my strength comes from within
And my strength is nourished by family and my willingness to live
So I'll keep pushing past the lost souls and twisted
Frames that the fires bend Cause I'm only getting strong, thanks to this desolate environment

Raylon Shane Attebury

Untitled

I maybe a caged beast
Who finds his freedom
Through creative art
It's at those moments

That I find self-government
No restraints to keep me
From developing my perception
Just because I live
In an antagonistic world
Where inhuman energy can thrive
Does not mean
I have to absorb its maliciousness Hopelessness is to look Outside of yourself
For serenity and contentment
I strive to become A perspective, functional mind
That can conceive the complexity
Of my own depth perception
Then from there, immeasurable possibilities

Religious Subject Matter/

Prayers

Artwork by Barnhardt, Marcus

Jamie D. Chaffin

"If I Pray Will He Forgive"

If I pray will He forgive?
All of my greed, all of my sins?
If I pray will He forgive?
That I've cursed my mother and forsaken my kids?
If I pray will He forgive?

That I've hurt many many men?
If I pray will He forgive?
That I've drank in so many sins?
If I pray will He forgive?
All of my lusts for different women?
If I pray will He forgive?
That I've hated my father, for leaving me In the snow in 92', when bitter cold was negative two?
If I pray will He forgive?
That I've cared for none, but killed for food?
If I pray will He forgive?
That I've never known love, so I say love's not true?
If I pray will He forgive?
Please tell me, If i pray will He forgive?

Nathaniel Griffin

Ask For Help

The pain that I have taken
Has led to destruction
From deception to temptation I have fallen to sin Then confusion on what to do has quickly set in Should I ask for forgiveness?
Or not even give in My pride took over told me it would be fine
Now I'm slowly walking
Being left behind
In darkness of torture with no way out
I'm locked behind a door
And I can't get out
I scream and I shout
But my voice is not heard
I cry and I pout
Still nothing to be heard
So I kneel on my knees and begin to pray Father please forgive and listen to me today
I've realized it's your way or none
The road I have lived was not so fun
I was full of pain and heartache and shame
I'm asking you lord please help me change
I know I am a man. But I can't do this alone
Please surround me with your mercy

And help me through the pain
Forgive me of my sins I ask Deeply from my heart.
I pray all this in Jesus' name
Amen.

Johnathan Holeman

A Divine Envy

Sometimes I really doubt
That there's any kind of God
At least not like a Bible says
Never an all compassionate one
I don't even think it thinks
I do know it's an it Never a He nor She Just an energy source That's all we are Used up till we're done
Don't care so much of forgiveness
It's all come and gone
Don't think very much of Heaven
Or some burning pit of Hell Living for eternity
Is eternally much too long Though I envy some believers
In this happiness they've found
But for me I'm not convincible
There's no special meaning
To my life or endless fall.

Nathaniel Griffin

Another burden

Another Burden
That I carry
Another sorrow
That I hold deep
Another place
And I shall succeed
Won't fall victim to these streets
So many people hold in their pain Falling victim to almost anything
Keep your eyes open
We got to stay strong

Prisoner Express 127 Anabel Taylor Hall Ithaca, NY 14853

This life isn't easy
So pick up your cross
He shall up your cross
He shall lead us
To everlasting peace
Just don't fall victim to these streets.

Brendan Bohannon

Inner Struggles

Dead to the world, but I'm still here Secrets of the past coming back as I draw near Ghosts of a different time haunt me today
Waiting for their chance to sweep me away I'm hoping for my chance at tranquil reconciliation
Only to be struck back once again by my own deviation
Am I my own worst enemy?
Or is it the dead who wish to steal away my harmonic legacy?
Two questions, if answered, could seal my fate
My battle with the Dead I will leave for a later date
Subterranean intervals have caused my woes
A crucial fight to the death I've delivered my foes
Is this inner-battle against an unforeseen entity?
Or am I just searching for a greater divinity?
The maker created me for a valiant cause My actions thus far, however, deserve no commendable applause
No more drama, no more pain Oh, Maker, please use me as you've preordained
I've battled the wicked tooth and nail Ghosts and demons from some treacherous horror tale
They cut at me with their scythes, but I'm still alive
And waiting for my chance to live a life with you as my guide
No more anger or useless misery
I'll be alright in the Maker's Company!

William Andrews

Focus

Open your hand...release those things,
Feel the joy...which letting go brings Break the lock...snap the chain,
Release the thoughts...which bred only pain.
Turn, look away...unfix your stare,
Drop the blinders, which held you there.
Focus your heart...upon the unseen,
Then you will find a Greater Being

Ross Hartwell

The God Job

Monogamy to God; I must serve
Gives me less than I deserve Ideas/ options alleging power
Yet to him I must cower.
Wants and needs are complicated
His gifts to me are underrated.
No petition for world dominance
Just a portion of what's promised Rein in hand leading this dark horse
I could do better than He, of course.
"Son" he speaks, bursting my bubble
"It's your will causing the trouble."
So I'm in control, I'm really God?
He smiles and winks, giving a Nod;
Along with a week for me to straighten Things I hate and blame on Satan
First making Sabbath special to heathen.
But that extra day is essential to feed them.
Sought to reconcile Muslims and Christians Then Buddhists and Hindus feared I'd leave them.
Everyday should resemble spring season
Yet no foliage grew, without a reason.
Need the summer, winter and fall,
Deaths a part in the cycle of all.

Sunday fishing: tempting? Waste of time,
That is serving your interest, not mine
Proving my power; all would be caching Sport becomes chore when fishing called fetching

Your favorite team, any you choose
Will always win and never lose.
Champs are chumps, since losers will never Play again in the wasted endeavor.

The crippled, poor, blind and weak
I cured them all by end of week.
Now premature gray, those with no hair,
Made accusations that I didn't care.

"Do what I say and always listen!
I'll lead you to what you are missing
Your ideas, of mine are wrong
You are weak while I am strong"

No alternatives, Ideals of perfection Reduced music to just one selection.
Now to decided which music to stop Maybe Tchaikovsky, Beethoven or Bach.

Without choices no use for color
Without voices no need for another.
Good or bad there is no gray
Black-n-white and no money.

The books you read, no need to edit
There's only one. You've already read it.
No Steinbeck, Nietzsche or Hemingway
No Faulkner, Fitzgerald or Tragedy.

People I love begin to rumble
From Empire State to African Jungle
Collectively ask "Why pray-n-serve You're not giving what we deserve."

All starts to crumble 'cause of no choice
"God, please take it back, I will rejoice."

Ought to be thankful waking from this dream
And the God I serve still reigns supreme.

What would I do if I had control?
Pull my hair out corralling lost souls.
Not enough benefits, not enough pay
Not enough time or hours in a day.

If up to me and I had to keep 'em
They'd swear up-n-down I'd mistreat them.
So it's better to stay a repentant voyeur
And let God do his job

Robert Gulbranson

Heretic

So all of these people came from Adam and Eve?
Is that what Genesis would have me believe?
No mention of dinosaurs or Neanderthal Man
All facts I'm supposed to ignore if I can
In a world full of starvation and kids with disease
They can call find forgiveness if they fall on their knees
But what good is forgiveness if it won't get them fed?
Didn't bring them relief while they've suffered and bled
It's all on blind faith or so that's what they say Hoping I won't need proof to show me the way
All controlled by a giant man in the sky
My questions need answers not just a blind eye
"Give me your money" they shout in the church
Cash for salvation it seems that's how it works
I can't believe it and I won't accept it
I've heard what they say and I still reject it
I can't even see it yet I'm supposed to fear it My problems feel so much more real than a spirit
You expect me to believe that all those good folks
Were cast into a lake of fire when they croaked
Just because they didn't go for the word?

I'm good on all that, it's completely absurd
Tell me anything, yeah man, whatever Guess I'm destined to be a heretic forever.

Bruce (E.D) Feaster

Unwanted Prayer- Psong Poem

I sit alone on my knees at night
Whispering words I hope will ignite
With cold eyes I despair
Praying to a God who doesn't care.

Forgotten all of these years
Please Father take my fears
As you beat me down with pain Unwanted prayers is all I gain.

I claim with hate unwanted prayers
As I partake in my affairs
Spoken only to be cast away
Tell my heart why do we pray.

Unwanted prayers on my lips
Every step I take I slip
Why does God hold me down
Better still He can't be found.

Afraid of a God with no face,
Fearing Heaven is no place.
My soul carries little weight
Death is a thing that can wait.

This is all that I have seen,
That religion is a beautiful dream
But truth is so far away
Tell me why must I pray.

Unwanted prayers on my lips
Every step I take I slip
I'm hoping I can't be found Praying God won't come around.

Vote of Thanks:

Prisoner Express Program received hundreds of brilliant entries this year and it was a pleasure to read each of these wonderfully penned pieces. I would like to thank all the poets and artists who sent in entries for consideration for Vol.16 and encourage you to keep writing and sketching! As Nelson Mandela who was wrongfully incarcerated for 27years said, "Freedom is not merely to cast off one's chains but to live in a way that respects and enhances the freedom of others." The life lessons and experiences shared through your art and poetry displays that freedom truly does start in the mind. I am just now starting to reading poetry for Vol17. Send in your submissions.

-Yvette -

Prisoner Express Program Coordinator,
Summer 2016.

Artwork by Adam Baird

CTA/Durland Alternatives Library
127 Anabel Taylor Hall
Ithaca, NY 14853-1001
www.prisonerexpress.org Change Service Requested

Non-Profit Organization
U.S. Postage Paid
Permit 448
Ithaca, NY 14853

PRISONER EXPRESS

POETRY ANTHOLOGY V. 16

Thank you to OADI, CPSC, Ithaca College's Off-campus Community Service Program for helping to support Prisoner Express and its programs.

Artwork by Daniel Reichert